Press for Champagne is all fiction except where it is not.

Ilgen’s first non-theoretical book

“Press for Champagne - Inside the Art World”

English, soft cover, black/white, 136 pages, 4 pictures 2019. Published in English by Studio Ilgen, Germany, ISBN 978-3-00-063442-0

The book offers a delightful fusion of personal and general views into the various aspects of the global art scene, fusing insights with critical remarks in readable, often “fat” and sometimes funny ways and surprising formats. These include observations about the Hong Kong art fair, the Venice Biennial, galleries and museums in Europe, Asia, the Middle East and the USA, and a series of virtual meetings of “The Timeless Five” - a sequence of fictitious meetings of Rubens, Rodin, Kandinsky, Beckmann, and De Kooning, walking through Chelsea, New York, visiting MoMA, the MET and the Guggenheim.

The Trilogy on Art

ART? No Thing! - Analogies between art, science and philosophy

Edited by Megan Craig, 432 pages, 50 full color reproductions, 20 black/white pictures. Published in English by PRO Foundation, the Netherlands, 2004, ISBN 9 0901 8543 7

“ART? No Thing!” is an extensive study of the analogies between art, science, and philosophy on experiencing art as an intermediary for understanding reality. While exceptionally informative on the history of art and science, it is Ilgen’s hypothesis that we are all unique individuals, nevertheless not entirely free and not only unique. Many natural and highly complex processes around and within us have an impact on our whole being, on our perception, and on art.

ARTIST? The Hypothesis of Bodiness (a new approach to understanding the artist and art)

English, hardcover, full color, 300 pages, 150 pictures of artworks. Published by Wasmuth GmbH, Germany, 2014, ISBN 978 3 8030 3364 2

ARTIST? offers familiar, surprising and revolutionary insights in the complex self of the artist and the experience offered by works of art. Ilgen questions innovation and unidirectional progress in art and discusses the natural importance of imperfection. The hypothesis of BODINESS is a new philosophy of the creation and experience of art, arguing we do not only and merely consciously decide what we wish to create or look at, because the human organism, the mind/body, sets perimeters for the creation of and experience offered by artworks.

The Viewer? The Actual Purpose of Art, anticipated to be published 2022.

English, hardcover, full color, c 200 pages, c 50 pictures of artworks and viewers. Published by Salon-Studio Ilgen, Berlin, Germany, 2022, ISBN 978

Key notions: the viewer, focus of attention, art for the private environment, art as part of corporate social responsibility standard.

Many features of art presented in this book are what we always sensed about the artworks that we instantaneously find appealing. Facts and interpretations from neuroscience bring forward an entirely new way of understanding the purpose of art and is a logical and necessary addition to art historical knowledge.

The Viewer? The Actual Purpose of Art offers historical, scientific and economic arguments for a necessary shift of focus in art away from the artist, or other art professional, back to the viewer. Earlier interest in the viewer evolved during the 20th century, while since the 1960s the emphasis was gradually directed away from the viewer. A shift back to the viewer (the viewer to be more important than the art professionals) has actually already happened, but still has to be generally acknowledged. After centuries of focusing on the artist as creative genius, and after half a century of focusing on the perspectives of the art professionals, as well as on creative financial constructions, we hardly care about the target audience of art.
